

UDT men paddle towards beach while on a night infiltration mission.

U.D.T.

Holding a rubber loop, pickup man riding a rubber raft towed by pickup boat prepares to snatch a UDT swimmer from the water.

During the invasion of Tarawa in 1943, landing craft ran aground more than a mile from shore on a coral reef that had been undetected by aerial reconnaissance. Many Marines were cut down by enemy fire while wading to shore in the hip-deep water.

Plans were then being made for the invasion of Europe. Something had to be done to keep obstacles near the beaches in France from causing another Tarawa-like disaster.

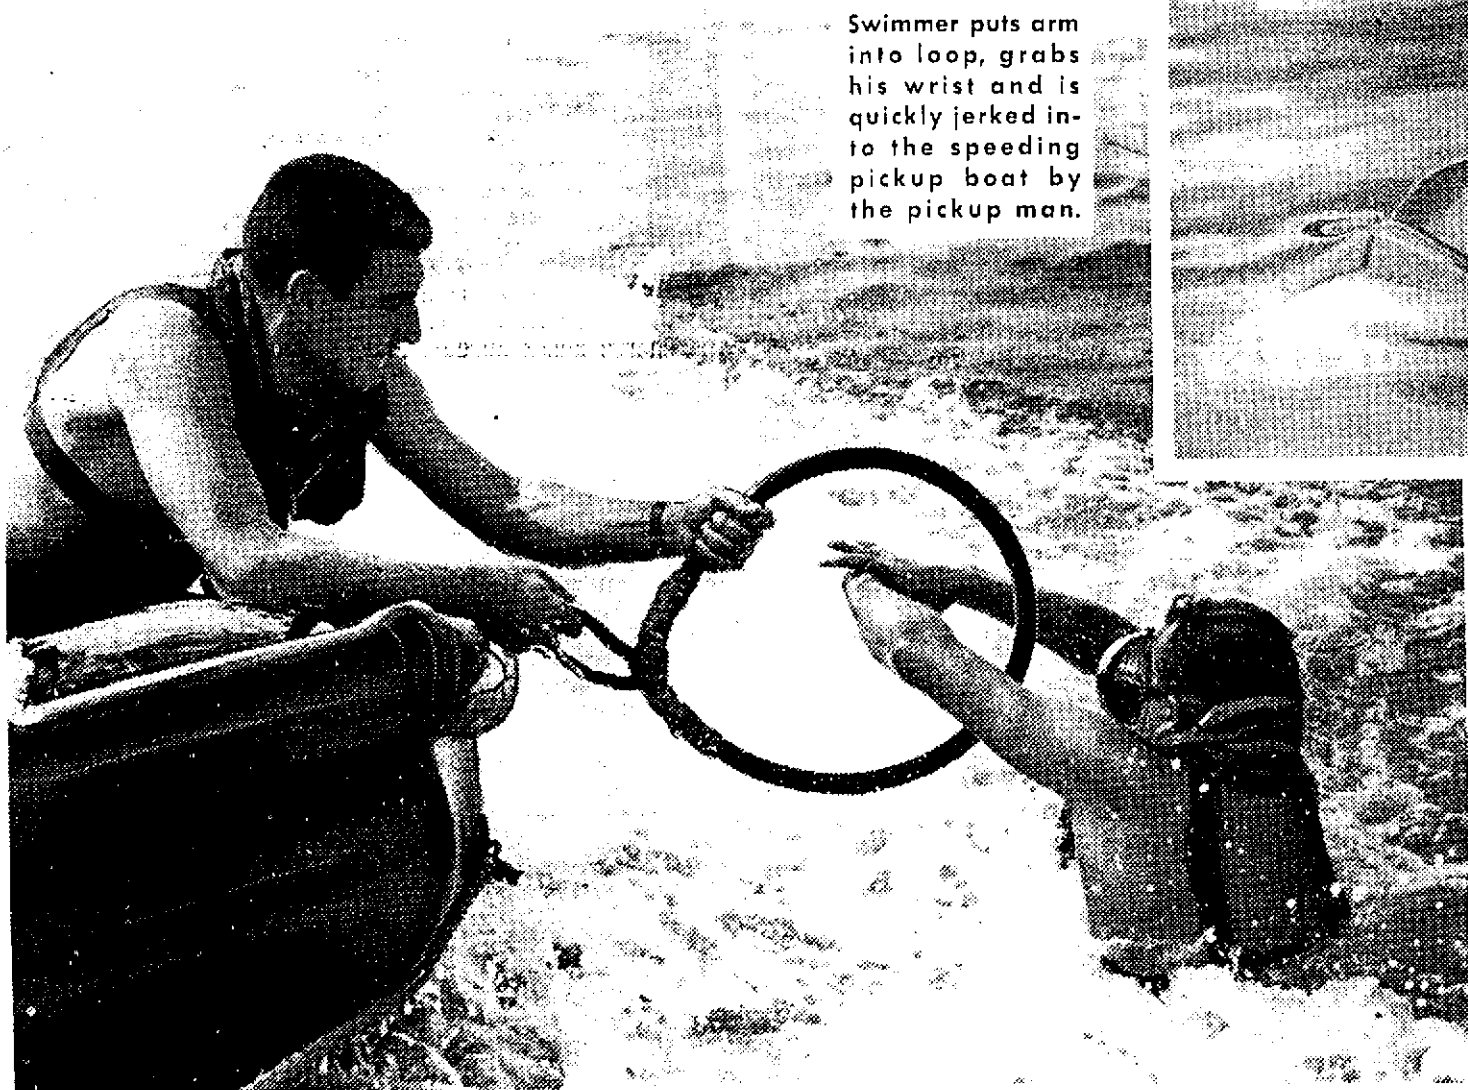

In the summer of 1943 a small group of Navy and Marine volunteers began training as the first underwater demolition team. Their later work in clearing the beaches for the invasion of Europe, and other amphibious landings during World War II, became legend.

Today's UDT members work with improved equipment and undergo more extensive training than their predecessors, but the work is still much the same as it was 20 years ago: intelligence collection and demolition of targets and obstacles.

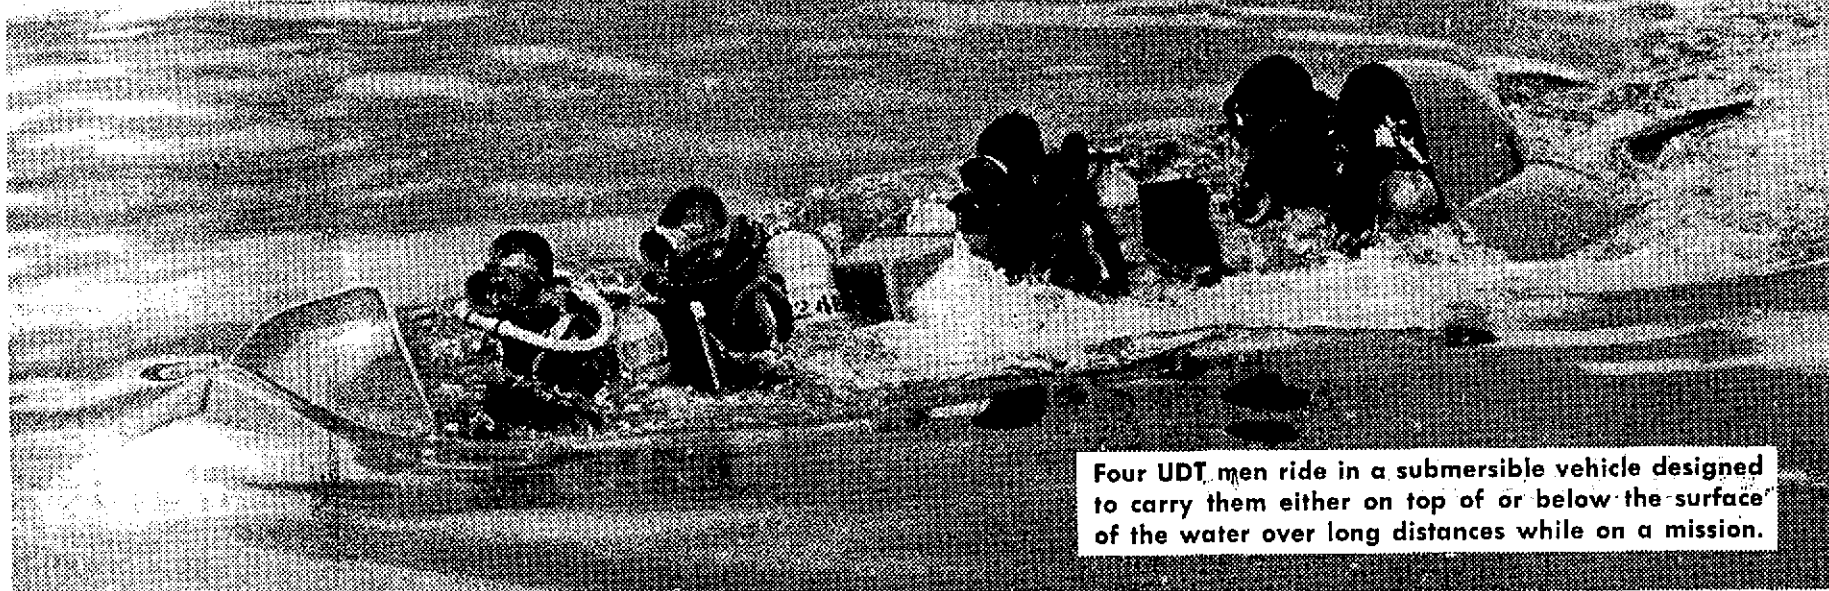

Training is rugged, designed to produce men who are at home in the ocean and who can rely on their own physical endurance and knowledge as well as that of team members. Less than 40 percent of the volunteers who take the 24-week UDT course get through it.

There are now four active underwater demolition teams, each with 15 officers and 101 enlisted men. The teams are divided into two-officer, 20-enlisted men platoons, trained and equipped to operate separately or together.

Swimmer puts arm into loop, grabs his wrist and is quickly jerked into the speeding pickup boat by the pickup man.

Four UDT men ride in a submersible vehicle designed to carry them either on top of or below the surface of the water over long distances while on a mission.

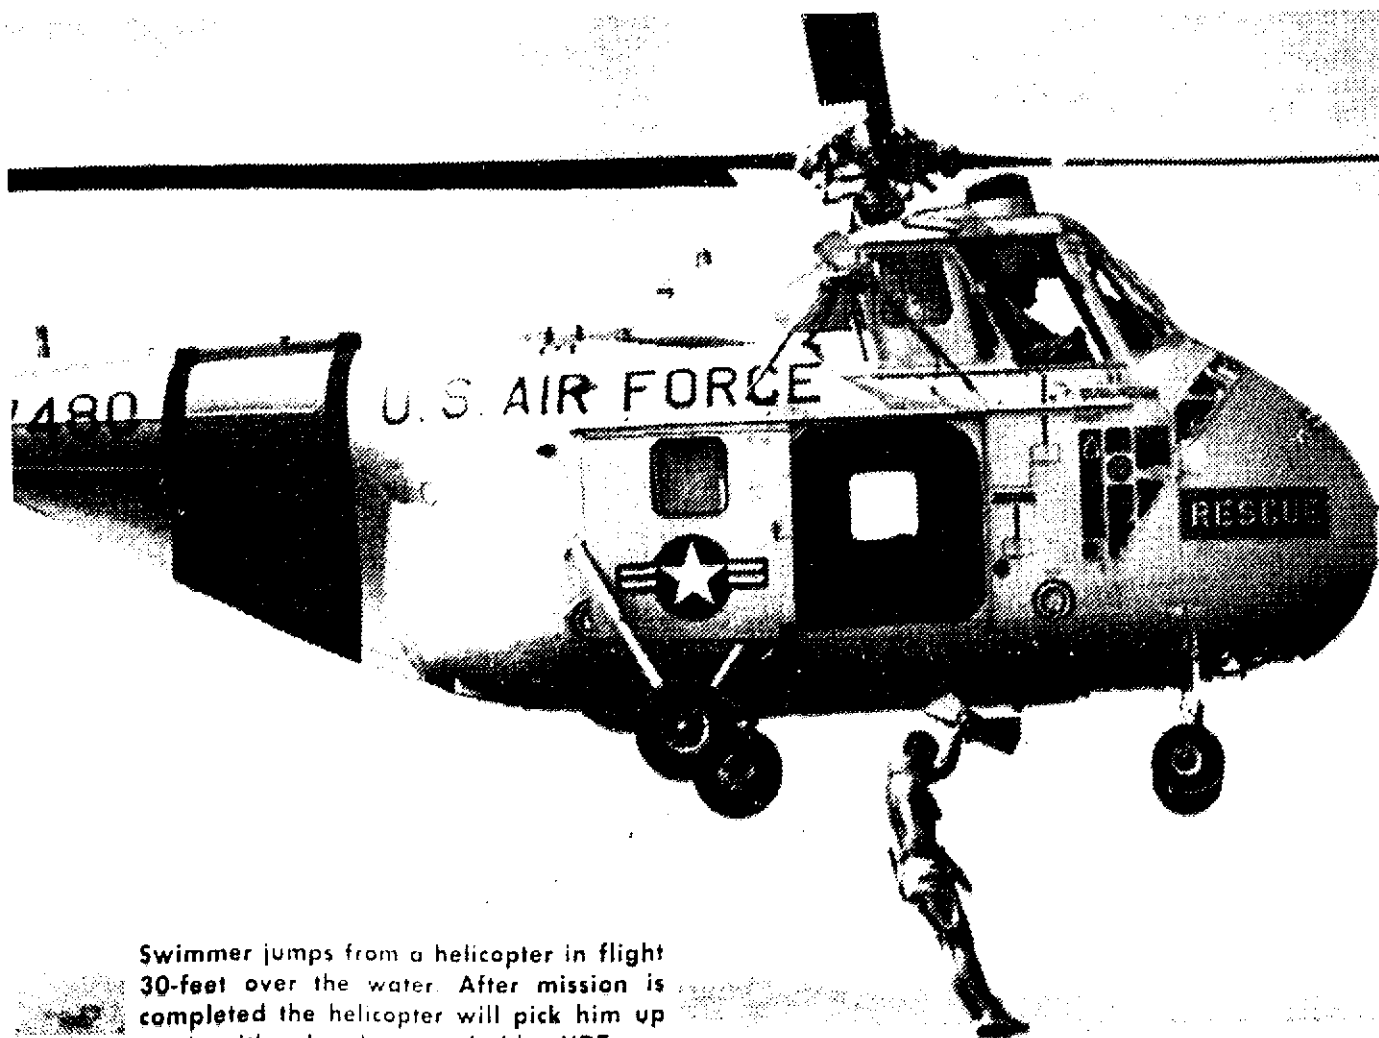

Swimmers exit from a submerged submarine via the escape hatch. They can then swim underwater to map off-shore obstacles and then return to the submarine without ever surfacing. A homing device leads them back.

In a training exercise, UDT men swim to a beach and place explosive charges to clear away obstacles. Gridded piece of plastic around neck of man in foreground is used to chart underwater obstacles.

Swimmer jumps from a helicopter in flight 30-feet over the water. After mission is completed the helicopter will pick him up again with a dangling rope ladder. UDT men also parachute from low flying aircraft.

HELEN HELP US!

Youth Asked For It!
This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help US! in this newspaper.

Oh, Brother!
Dear Helen: Being on only girl with three brothers is tough but when they're all younger, it's worse. My brothers are all healthy, normal monsters, aged seven, 10, and 12. When they're good, they're angels, but that isn't often. And tease? Wow!

The other night I made a special dessert just so they'd like it and when I asked them how it was, the 12-year-old said, "Fair," the 10-year-old said, "Too much sugar," and the 7-year-old said "Blea-a-ah."

About chores: My mother made a list of things for all of us to do, and that lasted about three days when, suddenly bingo — I'm back on the job, full-time, seven days a week. I do not mind the work, but I don't like the unfairness. When I talk to my father, he says I'm making a big to-do about nothing. My mother starts out on my side (against teasing and laziness) but somehow she ends up against me too. I feel like I'm one against five. Shouldn't a mother stay on her daughter's side? — Overworked and Teased

Dear O and T: There's a saying, "One boy is worth two; two boys are worth half a boy; and three boys—forget it." Honey, the sad truth is that you are easier to manage, so you get most of the jobs. Three boys together can figure out enough angles between them to wear down the strongest parents; and so they turn to you.

Yes, your mother SHOULD take your side, and she should insist your brothers do their chores even if the insisting takes twice the time she'd use to finish them herself. But she might have better luck if she put them on boy-work like lawns, car-washes, gardening, etc. I wish her luck! — H.

Dear Helen: What would you do with a big brother who, when your boy friend called, told him you could be reached at this certain number — and then gave the number of the local police station? — Kathy

NOTE TO READERS: Because hundreds of you have asked "How can I help the fellows in Vietnam?" I went to the top and asked: A letter from the Assistant Secretary of Defense enclosed a fact sheet titled "Guide Lines to Support U. S. Service Personnel." It tells you all you want to know about personal correspondence, collections, gifts and letters to units (and the addresses of the various units), service organizations, and blood donations. Write to Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense, Washington, D. C. for your free copy. — H.

Teen Boost of The Month Club
Dear Helen: Sacramento's Luther Burbank High School students have raised $1,000 to help children in a Vietnamese orphan home and they are still collecting clothes, blankets and toys to be sent overseas.

The drive came in response to a letter from a sailor which told of the Da Nang orphanage operated by a Vietnamese nun order. Children there range from three weeks to five years old.

He said in part, "I have made three visits and each time it's a little more heartbreaking. The 72 children are divided into two rooms, the heat is terrible and, along with the flies and insects, it actually turns your stomach."

Young people at our local high school have responded so wonderfully that I thought they deserve a spot in your Teen Boost of the Month. — R. W. S., Sacramento, California.

Dear R: They certainly do! — H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' news division under its president Richard S. Salant, wants to do something constructive about the fierce three-network competition that sometimes duplicates coverage of the same stories.

Salant spoke Wednesday to a conference of representatives of the network's affiliated stations. He recalled his "serious reservations" about the opening to closing coverage of political conventions by all three networks two years ago, including what he called "all the trivia and fill — the endless nominations of favorite sons and second-order speeches, the unsponsored spontaneous demonstrations and so on and so on and nauseum."

He said Wednesday that it is time to reconsider this coverage in terms of "journalistic function" — edited reports of meaningful events — instead of focusing on the story as it occurs.

He proposes now to apply editorial judgment to coverage of the May 17 flight of Gemini 9. Barring emergencies, CBS will reduce sharply the amount of network time given to the flight, but will break in for short periods to cover important events — the launching, docking in space, an astronaut's walk in space. And then it will cover the return of the capsule.

"Man's ascent into space is no longer unprecedented nor is each mission so extraordinary," he said. A space journey, he said, once the rocket is in orbit is a second hand story passed along by the space agency which can be seen neither by television reporters nor caught by the cameras.

It is perhaps inevitable that some network would ultimately move in this direction. It has been slow in coming largely — again in Salant's words — "for competitive reasons, or for public relations reasons or to polish up our image, whatever that means."

It should be noted that a couple of months ago, CBS broke the accepted competitive pattern when it decided not to broadcast the day-long hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It handled the testimony with special programs of highlights in the late afternoon and evening. This caused considerable controversy and the resignation of CBS News President Fred W. Friendly who disagreed with the decision.

Hugh Downs of NBC's "Today Show" also was talking about television practice Wednesday. In a speech prepared for the Advertising Club of New York, he cautioned Madison Avenue about aiming what he called "bad commercials" at viewers.

He decried "too many one-joke commercials repeated to a point of great unfunness — a bite out of a hat may be funny but not the 30th time you've seen it."

He also mentioned "biological distortion" — hammers in the head and fires in the stomach. He warned about diminishing credibility by using fantasy that gets too far out.

Downs, who must have delivered thousands of "sponsors' messages" in his long broadcasting career, did admit that there were some "good commercials" too. But he didn't say which ones he thought they were.

The Boutique

Knits From Beach to Altar

by Helen Hennessy
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Knit fashions are not only here to stay but can be diversified enough to take you from the beach to the altar. And there will be no dearth of future designers to create imaginative knits in every fashion category.

These truths were evident at a recent fashion event where a dramatic, striped evening sheath for Baby Jane Holzer, lounging pajamas for Sean Connery and a daring cut-out swimsuit for Brigitte Bardot all were awarded prizes. This was the Headliner Knit student design competition held at New York's Hotel Pierre. And in the lineup of designs there was even a beautiful flat knit wedding gown, created with Luci Baines Johnson in mind.

American Cyanamid (makers of Creslan fiber) sponsored this competition for the students of Pratt Institute to introduce new knit fabrics for fall and to show the versatility of knits.

Each contestant created a fashion for someone who is in today's headlines. The designs ran the gamut from knacky knickers for Julie Christie to a well-tailored sports jacket for New York's Mayor John Lindsay.

Top honors went to Jane Schockter of Springfield, Mass., for a red-and-navy striped evening dress designed for Baby Jane Holzer.

Miss Schockter began her designing career at the age of six by making her own paper dolls and their wardrobes. By the time she was nine she was the youngest member of the Springfield Art League. She doesn't think they have ever — before or since — taken in anyone that young.

Jane herself likes the dramatic and different and that's why she had B. J. H. in mind for her design. She showed great imagination in the dress she created because the striped knit fabric she worked with was developed to be used for sports shirts. By the way, she can't sew.

Darlene Holland from Trumbull, Conn., won second prize with lounging pajamas she did for Sean Connery "because he has the reputation of being a lady killer and should look dashing at home."

The pajamas were engineered for comfort and good looks. Darlene claims her mother, who is an excellent seamstress, inspired her to choose designing as a career. "She has always had the instincts of a designer," Darlene said, "and has ideas two or three years ahead of everyone else."

The third winner never had a nodding acquaintance with paper dolls; in fact, he was a football player.

Michael Arceneaux, who designed the winning cut-out swimsuit for Brigitte Bardot (as well as 30 other designs for famous theater celebrities), is an athlete who has also studied dancing for 12 years and specializes in adagio work.

He likes to have about 20 things going at once. He has done costumes for the Pratt Playhouse productions of

"Hedda Gabler" and "Dark of the Moon" and has played Stanley Kowalski in "Streetcar" and Joseph Surface in "School for Scandal."

He plans to go on to Yale Drama School and (at the moment) his ambitions are to design costumes for movies, act on Broadway, do freelance illustrating and have a small couture house on the side. Oh, to be young again.

This whirlwind dervish of activity likes free movement — naturally. He feels that there should be no restraints in fashion, no corsets, no tight waists and feels that knits fill the bill for this freedom.

Other highlights of this interesting fashion show were an elegant street dress for Audrey Hepburn, a soft green sweeping beach robe for Barbara McNair and a vivid pink evening gown for the new singing sensations, the Supremes.

Creslan bonded crepe knit was the fabric used in these three different fashions, a fact which points up the versatility of knits.

This fashion show proved the adaptability of easy-care wrinkleproof knitwear to around-the-clock modern living. And it also showed that we can expect the designers of the future to do great things with yarn.

Consolidated Boards Meet

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The attorney general's office said Tuesday that the affairs of the recently consolidated Boone, Cash and Egypt school districts will have to be conducted by the 15 school board directors representing the three districts.

During the next school election, however, the membership will be reduced to six.

Winners of the competition are shown, left to right. Michael Arceneaux, third place, with green tank suit he designed for Brigitte Bardot; Darlene Holland, second place, with lounging pajamas she created for Sean Connery; and Jane Schockter, first place, with knit gown made for Baby Jane Holzer.

Luci Baines Johnson was the bride in mind when Carol Burstein created this simply cut wedding gown for the Headliner Student Design competition at Pratt Institute.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Better Anesthesia Makes Painless Dentistry Possible

BY WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.,
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Sorry, I don't mean to be a baby, but I hate needles. When I was a child I had to have poison ivy shots and the doctor had to chase me all over the office. I've always hated needles. My mother hates needles."

This story is like a broken record and dentists hear it all the time. The very idea of getting stuck with a needle sends some people into a tizzy. Most often this fear is related to a childhood experience or family trait.

Years ago there may have been some basis for fear of injections. Needles were long and thick and when they were clamped into one of those big, shiny, steel syringes the combination looked like a weapon.

In those days a needle was used many times and after each boiling the tip got duller and duller. This, combined with a burr at the tip caused by the sometimes careless handling during sterilization caused one dentist to say about these needles, "They went in like dum-dum bullets and came out like fish-hooks."

But things have changed.

Comeing and GOING

H. L. Washington left Thursday, May 5 for Los Angeles, Calif. to visit his children; Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Washington. He will visit nephews and nieces in Pasadena, San Diego and Oceanside, and other places of interest.

Most dentists used disposable needles—one shot and into the waste basket. These needles are shorter and thinner and sharper. Techniques are better, too, and injection areas can be painted with topical "novocaine" which helps deaden the initial prick of the needle.

Anesthetics have been improved, too. They are more potent and less toxic; freezing can be accomplished with minimal amount of solution and little or no side reactions. There are very few patients who are truly allergic to the new solutions.

Freezing the jaw can be effected by either block anesthesia or infiltration anesthesia. In lower jaws one whole side of the jaw is usually blocked off with one injection and almost any dental procedure, fillings, extractions or removal of nerves, can be performed without pain.

In upper jaws the solution is injected into the gums directly over the tip of the root and is rapidly absorbed into the gums and bone, and into the tooth. Sometimes both types of shots are needed.

For most dental work, anesthesia is a blessing for patient and dentist, and in some special procedures it is impossible to do quality dentistry without it.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

MY, HAVE TIMES CHANGED: In 1943, when Batman and Robin first jarred the interest of Americans in a Columbia movie serial, their costumes left something to be desired (left). Batman, in long Johns and hoots, was played by Lewis Wilson and Robin, in a Halloween mask and fuzzy hair, starred Douglas Croft. ABC-TV's version of the Dynamic Duo is a bit more streamlined. Yet wrinkles show in West's battligns and Ward's cape needs pressing.

God's Word

Says Come

Second Sunday in May

...in America that means Mother. Every second Sunday in May is Mother's Day, one of the greatest of special days. It is a time when men, women, boys and girls take pains to do her homage, to dedicate to her — with simplicity and love, the simplest of things she wants most. Since it is her day, may the countless details and careful planning be in strict accord with her varied tastes. May we never forget life's uncertainties, disappointments and failures as we make plans to celebrate. May we forget all the foibles of men and remember her love is steadfast, sure. Who else can kiss a hurt and make it well? Who but Mother can control the Prodigal's steps? Then honor her with all you have on this Lord's Day. Lend a constant, kind and friendly hand as you take her to church. It is your Mother's Day.

WIN AT BRIDGE

A letter from Portland, Maine, reads in part: "West opened the nine of clubs against my four-heart contract. He got in with the king of hearts to lead a second club and with the ace of hearts to lead a third club for his partner to ruff. I had to lose a diamond later on and wound up one down. My partner claims that I overbid. Did I?"

The answer to our reader is that he did not overbid at all. He had a full opening bid opposite his partner's club opening, plus a fit in clubs, and was fully entitled to force to game. Furthermore, the game contract was a good one and could have been made against any lead but a club. We think that, instead of fussing at South, North should have congratulated West on a beautiful opening lead.

It is pretty easy to see the effectiveness of a club opening when you look at all the cards, and we believe that the West hand does call for a club opening, but we wonder just how many bridge players would see the strong possibility that repeated club leads would eventually give their partner a ruff.

It is seldom good tactics to lead a suit that your opponents have bid and rebid. In fact, such a lead usually comes close to being a give-away play, but this time West had a lot going for him.

To start with, he could be pretty sure that hearts would divide 5-3-3-2. Then North and South were each likely to hold four clubs. North had opened the suit and South had given a jump raise.

Furthermore, West did not have any other lead with any real promise. He had no reason to open a trump and neither his spade nor diamond holding looked attractive.

Wynne Finds New Way to Win

By WM. TAYLOR McKEOWN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

MIAMI—(NEA)—Two likable boatmen, Jim Wynne and Walt Walters from Miami, figure they're on their way to becoming the most disliked sailors around.

All because they may have found a way to go faster.

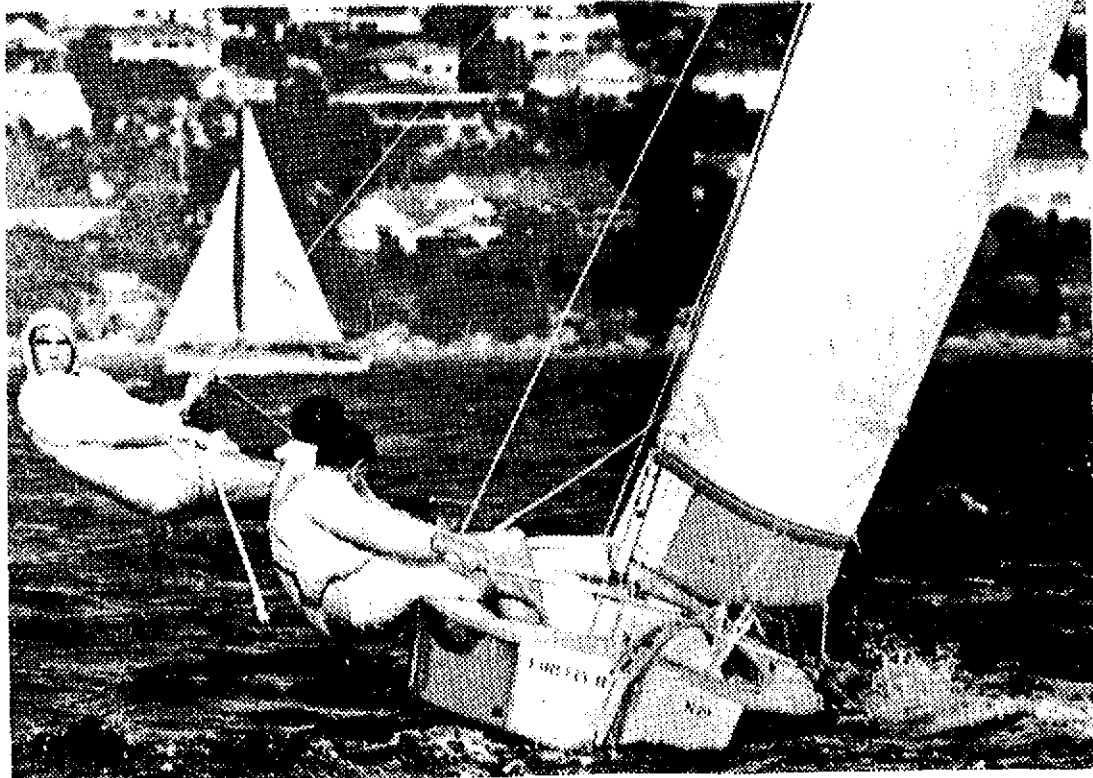

Offshore marathon racing is supposed to be wide open for new hull designs and bigger engines. Each one of about 50 boat owners around the country who go out for the rough sport thinks he has come up with the hottest boat afloat, the one that will set the trends for stock pleasure craft next year.

But Wynne and Walters have just taken the successful 32-foot aluminum hull they designed and installed a couple of smaller engines. At 445 horsepower each, they don't torque out as much push as some of the conventional engines, but they've got the competition scared.

Wound up and whistling like banshees, they spin at 37,000 revolutions per minute and deliver almost two horsepower per pound of weight. Wynne and Walters have geared them down to crank regular propellers.

First time out—in the Sam Griffith Memorial from Miami to Fort Lauderdale. Bim-ini, Cat Cay and back — they ran away from the field. Of course, the ocean was so rough only one other boat, a well-setup outboard from among the 32 starters, managed to finish the race.

LEFT BANK—These Australian sailors seem to have a problem, but the solution is within reach. Sailing has become a major sport in Australia and is beginning to rival tennis for participants.

"We never got the throttles wide open," Wynne admits. "The boat averaged only 37 miles an hour against a 70-mile-an-hour fleet for the 170 miles, the seas were so rough." So rough, Dick Bertam, who won the world's offshore championship from Wynne last year, had his big diesel 36-footer sink out from under him, and boats were scattered all over the Gulf Stream.

The turbine job got a lot of attention just for finishing, but it was the careful setup against extremely rough weather that brought her safely in.

The turbines presently have a price tag of $27,000 apiece and aren't going to tempt a lot of buyers. But the compact little whistlers may be a new breakthrough for power on the water.

Second to Willie Mays?

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Curt Flood of the St. Louis Cardinals has spent most of his major league career playing the same position as Willie Mays.

Therefore, Curt Flood could be pardoned for feeling slightly bitter—if he felt any bitterness.

"Being second to Willie Mays?" Flood said. "How can that bother someone? Being second to him is quite a compliment because he certainly is one of the greatest athletes of the decade."

"I don't worry about it. Willie makes his money and I make mine because we both do well."

If Mays is the greatest, National Leaguers ask, how far behind is Curt Flood?

During the last five years he has batted .322, .296, .302, .311 and .310, but he's been on just one all-star team—as a pinch-runner in 1964.

"Well," Curt philosophized, "every year either Hank Aaron or Roberto Clemente gets hurt, too, and they're pretty fair ballplayers."

The 1966 season may be the biggest challenge yet for Flood, who has become the key man in the St. Louis offense now that Cardinal general manager Bob Howsam has completely remodeled the 1964 World Champions.

Gone are Ken Boyer, Bill White and Dick Groat, which means opposing pitchers will be able to concentrate more on Flood this season.

"Personally," Flood said, "I hated to see our ball club break up because those men had valuable talent. They were the best in their fields. But baseball is like any other business. You have to look further than a year or two ahead. And that's what our front office was doing. Bad, good or indifferent, I will still give my 100 per cent."

Flood's 100 per cent, unfortunately, will not match Mays who, at 34, is having another great season.

"I think Willie can go five

CURT FLOOD
"I don't worry..."

more years," Flood said. "He takes tremendous care of himself."

"If he's slowing up at all, it comes in spots. About the only time I noticed it is in his ball park where it's colder and he can't be as loose all the time. But when he gets into our ball park where it's hot, he's the old Mays—unbelievable."

"It's amazing how he keeps that pace up because he has so many outside pressures. I know I resist as many outside things as possible because I feel baseball demands all your time and concentration."

The pressure on Willie Mays grows each season, but Willie's batting average, his home runs and his RBIs grow proportionately.

Five more years. Curt Flood isn't counting.

Angels in Anaheim

ANAHEIM, Calif. — (NEA) — It was the same every morning when the California Angels were on a road trip.

The players would filter down from the hotel rooms two and three at a time, walk over to the newsstand for the papers, then head for the coffee shop or dining room.

About five minutes later, there would be puzzled looks and submissive shrugs of the shoulders as they studied the Los Angeles Dodger box scores.

And on the bottom of those box scores—where it said "attendance"—there were always five figures. Not 10,000 or 11,000 either. But 45,000 and 50,000.

Then the Angels would head back to Los Angeles and they'd look up in the stands at Dodger Stadium and see 5,000 people in the park.

It was not a good feeling.

This year, is going to be different, though. The Angels have moved down the Freeway to Anaheim, and when the season starts, it won't be in a borrowed ballpark. It will be their own.

"The whole ball club is looking forward to it," shortstop Jim Fregosi said. "Baseball is a game of runs and hits, but I don't care what anybody says—it's tough to play in a ballpark that belongs to somebody else. You can't even run the organization correctly. In Orange County (which contains Anaheim), the people seem enthusiastic and behind us 100 per cent."

"That's going to make a big difference. With 20,000 to 30,000 fans in the stadium, instead of four or five, we are going to get a lot more out of our ballplayers."

Manager Bill Rigney also feels the new stadium and surroundings will help the club.

"We aim to push someone out of the first division," Rigney said.

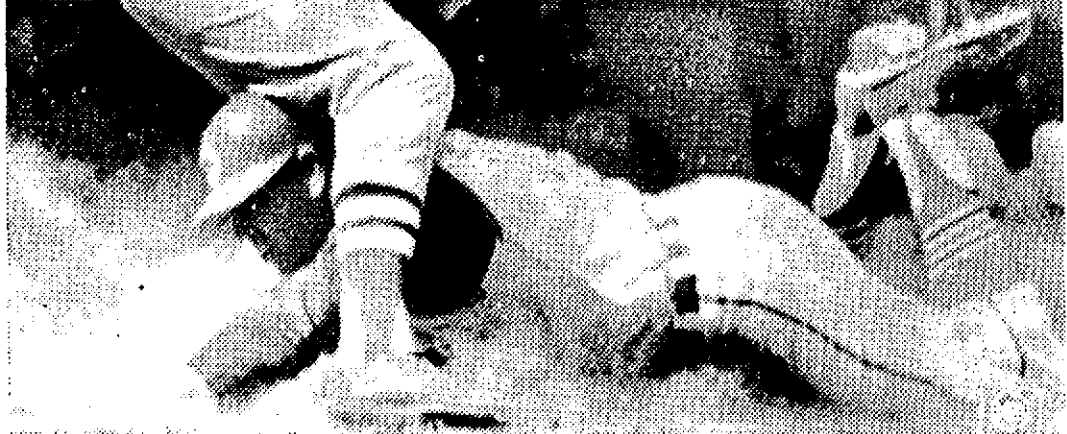

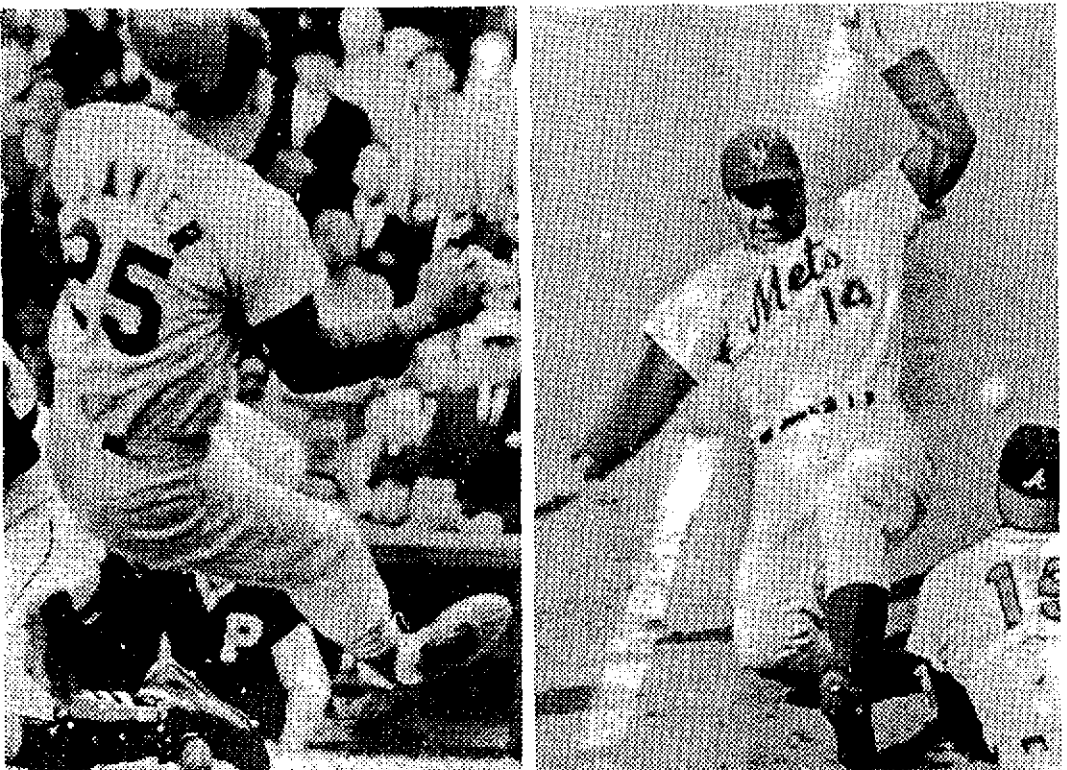

The Angels could do it, too, if they finally get some help from Rick Reichardt, the $200,000 bonus boy, and rookie Jack Warner, who had an excellent spring until injuring his hand. Both are outfielders.

"Rick looks great some days, not so good on others," Rigney said. "He's playing every day, has all the tools and is aggressive. We'll just have to see."

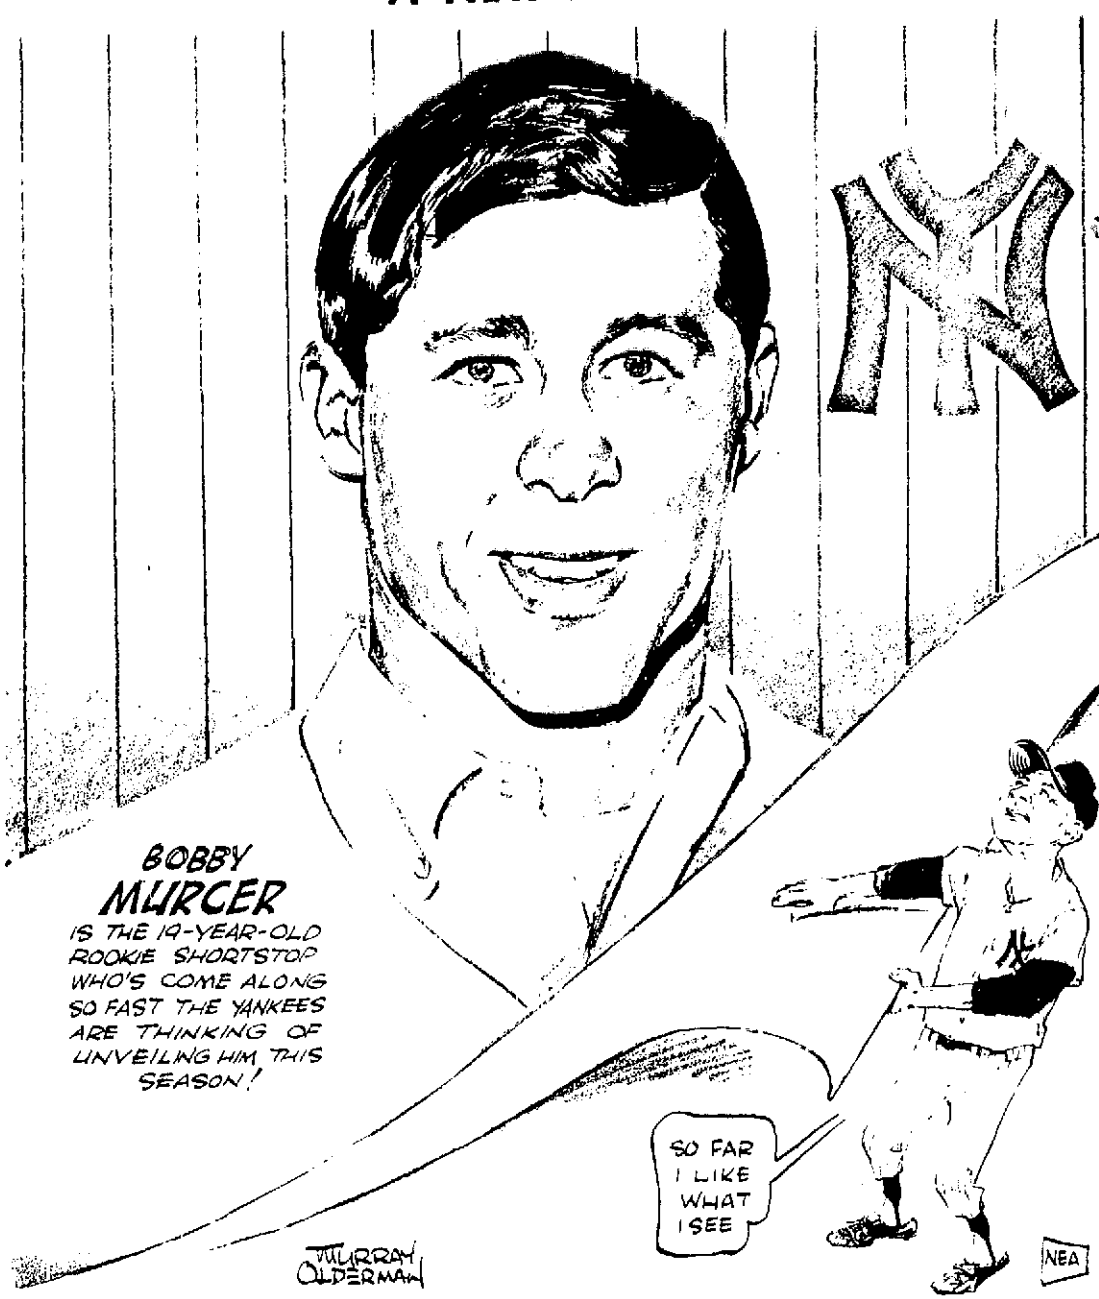

Rigney isn't the only one watching the progress of the rookies. Every Angel regular is taking a big interest.

"We need their bats," says catcher Bob Rodgers, who also had an excellent spring after a sub-par year in 1965. "If two of them can play regularly, we will be in good shape."

"We've got balance we've never had before."

SLIDING ALONG—Form doesn't matter when you're going for an extra base as Julian Javier (25) of the Cardinals, Ken Boyer (14) of the Mets and Max Alvis, below, of the Indians demonstrate.

... Another Koufax For Sure

"Throws harder than Sandy..."

By BOB HARDING
Written for
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

TUCSON, Ariz. — (NEA) — Here in the glare of the Arizona sun, Sam McDowell of the Cleveland Indians casts a long shadow.

Of course, most everyone does who stands 6-5 and weighs 212 pounds, but Sam casts more than shade. He fires a pretty good fast ball, too.

Last year it was by far the best in the American League —325 batters didn't even hit it. This year, Sam's fast ball could be the best pitch in all baseball, surpassing even the famous curve of Sandy Koufax and establishing Sam as the game's top pitcher.

That's what some baseball people think. Sam McDowell, however, isn't one of them.

"I don't think about strikeouts because I don't try for them," says Sam. A ruggedly handsome 23-year-old, he speaks confidently but measures his words. "I'd much rather get a man out on one pitch than three, and I'd rather win 20 games than strike out 400 batters."

"As for being as good as Koufax, boy, that never enters my mind. My curve is only mediocre and he's the best in baseball. I'm not one-third the pitcher he is."

Such an opinion speaks well for Sam's modesty, but it is a view shared by practically no one. Frank Lane doesn't agree with it a bit. Long one of baseball's most forceful executives, Lane is now with the Baltimore organization. But six years ago he was a Cleveland vice president when the Indians signed Sam fresh out of high school.

"As I recall," says Lane, "Hoot Evers and Bob Kennedy went down and camped on Sam's doorstep for a full week. It was worth it, though. Sam is the American League's answer to Koufax, and I believe he's capable of winning 25 games a season. Actually, I don't put any limit on how great he can be. Why, he's still a growing boy."

He's big enough for most batters, including hard-hitting Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs, who has to face Sam only in spring training.

"I think Sam actually throws harder than Sandy," says Ron with the enthusiasm of a man who likes to talk baseball. "Sam's still a little wild, of course, but he's coming along so fast it's hard to believe. His fast ball moves, whereas Sandy's rises. Both are tough to hit. But I'll tell you what Sam has that Sandy doesn't—a slider. Once he gets his control, he'll be another Koufax for sure."

Birdie Tebbetts, Sam's manager at Cleveland, is reluctant to discuss his young pitcher.

"I think everyone is trying to rush Sam into greatness," says Birdie. "This is something Sam has to do by himself, and I think he will. I just don't want the publicity to hurt him."

Sam is aware of the danger, too.

"All I'm hoping for this season," Sam said, "is to improve on my number of victories. I think that's more important, both from a personal and team standpoint. We could be first, second or third, and if we stay healthy, it'll be first."

Training Camp Climates Clash

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. — (NEA) — In Emile Griffith's camp, there is laughter and music and an easy air as the three-time welterweight champion spars and skips rope.

Ten miles up the road in this plush playland in the Catskills, the only sounds in the ski lodge that is middleweight champion Dick Tiger's training headquarters are shuffling feet and leather slapping against leather.

To disturb either routine would be to invite disaster, people in each camp say. Griffith would stop jabbering and joking. The quiet Tiger would start talking loudly, which he does only when he's upset.

For both men, their middleweight championship match in Madison Square Garden Monday, April 25, has become "the most important fight of my life."

"I am 36," said Tiger, the Nigerian whose real name is Richard Ihetu. "This is my championship and I am going to keep it. I must prove I am not so old that I can beat only slow old fighters like Joey Giardello."

Said Griffith, "The money is not important to me. I am making only 20 per cent. Tiger has 40 per cent. It is pride I am the champion of the welterweights and I will be champion of the middleweights."

Tiger, the stalker and head-hunter type like most foreign fighters, is an 8-5 favorite over the sharp-punching, slippery 27-year-old from St. Thomas, V.I. Handlers said Tiger will weigh just under 160. Griffith about 152.

Training for a fight is touchy," said Gil Clancy, Griffith's co-manager. "This is six weeks of emotional hell for a fighter. It has to be done just right, no flaws."

Cicero On Foreign Aid —
The common gripe about American's costly foreign aid program isn't new. About 2,000 years ago there were similar groans among the Romans concerning their government's give-away program.

The protest of Marcus Cicero, Roman orator and statesman, sounds strikingly similar to present-day complaints in the U.S. See below:

"We are taxed in our bread and our wine, in our incomes and our investments, on our land and on our property, not only for base creatures who do not deserve the name of men, but for foreign nations, for complainant nations who will bow to us and accept our largess and promise us to assist in the keeping of the peace — these mendicant nations who will destroy us when we show a moment of weakness or our treasury is bare, and surely it is becoming bare!

"We are taxed to maintain legions on their soil, in the name of law and order and the Pax Romano, a document which will fall into dust when it pleases our allies and our vassals.

"We keep them in precarious balance only with our gold. Is the heart blood of our nation worth these? Shall one Italian be sacrificed for Britain, for Gaul, for Egypt, for India, even for Greece, and a score of other nations?"

"Were they bound to us with ties of love, they would not ask for our gold. They would ask only our laws. They take our very flesh, and they hate and despise us. And who shall say we are worthy of more?" — Paul Buchanan in the Batesville Guard

Soldiers in Viet Nam Are Deserting

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A lot of soldiers on both sides are deserting in Viet Nam. Defections from the Communist Viet Cong are running more than 2,300 a month, American officials report.

Against this, the officials say desertions from the South Vietnamese regular army run currently at 6,600 a month, with additional desertions from the regional and the popular forces.

These figures must be considered in proportion. The government military strength is estimated at 600,000, including auxiliary units. The Viet Cong guerrillas, plus North Vietnamese regulars and village auxiliaries, are estimated to total 200,000 to 250,000.

Most deserters from the South Vietnamese army do not go over to the Viet Cong. Instead they return to their homes, go into hiding or filter into the cities looking for work. Some re-enlist later.

The rate of desertion — nothing new in this land — continues. The rate of desertion — nothing new in this land — continues. To cause deep concern for both the South Vietnamese government and the American military.

They draw some encouragement from the rising number of Viet Cong defections.

These totaled 2,336 in March, the highest so far, and American officials say a quarter of them were officers. Viet Cong defections, less than 1,000 a month last year, rose to 1,672 in January and 2,011 in February.

American authorities believe one reason for the climb is the worsening of the Viet Cong's military position.

A major factor also is the "chieu hoi," or open arms, program undertaken two years ago by the Saigon government under American sponsorship.

Using psychological warfare — largely leaflets and front-line loudspeakers — the government promises Viet Cong defectors good treatment. It also encourages them to bring over weapons, offering rewards up to 20,000 piastres — $274 — for a 57mm recoilless rifle.

The propaganda also plays on the hardships of life under the Viet Cong.

A returnee, as he is called by the South Vietnamese government, is first sent to an "open arms" center for 45 days to be checked and rehabilitated.

Then he is sent back to his native locality if it is in government hands. If not he is resettled elsewhere.

Students of Marlbrook School Back 1912-13

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

There have been homecomings at the Marlbrook Church for some years now, but for the first time a reunion will be held at the Marlbrook School near Blevins on Sunday, May 15. Those who went to school at Marlbrook in 1912-13 are spearheading the event, but anyone who ever went to the school is invited and many are expected.

The history of the school, which was consolidated with Blevins in 1929 or 1930, is closely associated with the church history of the area. The Marlbrook Presbyterian Church was organized about 1890 by a preacher named Dr. Wallace, who also gave the land for the church. The present building was erected in 1900, but it is no longer functioning at this time.

Marlbrook School District No. 23 was organized about the same time, and the land for the school was donated by Mrs. Drucilla Williams who was the mother of the late Dr. J. C. Williams, pastor of the Washington and the Prescott Presbyterian Churches on different occasions.

Early settlers and patrons of the Marlbrook School were families with names like Bonds, Williams, Bell, Richardson, Ross, Wickers, Wade, Yarberry, Wallace, Austin, McCaskill, Hendrix, Brooks, Marlow, Mayfield, Peyton, Cullins, Wood, Bolt, and Carter.

In about the year 1905 some families from Nevada County were moving to the Indian Territory. When they got to the Marlbrook Community, they liked it so well they decided to stay. These include people named Sampson, Hart, Smith, Honea, White, Chambliss, and Loe. They were members of the Nazarene Church, and they soon organized the Bell's Chapel Church. The land for the church was donated by the late Dr. Min'o Bell, father of the Rev. Will Bell of Kerrville, Tex., and the grandfather of the Rev. Wayne Bell. The latter is the current pastor of the church and will bring the sermon at 11 a.m. on the day of the reunion.

Some of the teachers in the Marlbrook School District No. 23 were: M. A. Matlock, Miss Maud Ward (now Mrs. Maud Bartlett of Hot Springs, and she plans to attend,) Joe Reynolds, S. B. C. May, Frank May, R. W. Bonds (now of Blevins), Otis Landers, Miss Nannie Bell McCaskill, Miss Pauline Steward, Miss Emma Phillips, Miss Edna Nesbitt, Miss Mary Bonds, and Miss Carrie Bonds (mother of Olin Lewis of Hope).

The old Marlbrook Community is rich in history. About 8 or 10 Civil War veterans, 10 to 12 World War I veterans, and 8 or 10 World War II veterans are buried at the Marlbrook Cemetery. But memories aren't buried so deep they can't be revived, and this will be done in fine style on May 15.

The 50 to 75 people who are expected from any parts of the country will probably recall when the school was one room, and then, became two rooms. Water had to be brought a quarter of a mile, and two buckets were used with dippers. One was for the boys and one for the girls. The students had to march inside in separate lines — one for the boys and the other for the girls. This made courting a little difficult until after school for the teacher really lowered the boom for a wink or a whisper.

The reunion of all former pupils of the Marlbrook School was the idea of Mrs. Essie Vonds White, now of Tempe, Ariz., but many have worked hard on its promotion. These include Art Brooks, of Nashville, Lester Wade, Mrs. Ira Brooks, Mrs. Floyd Brooks, Roy Bonds and Dale Bonds, all of Blevins.

Urges Schools to Eliminate Fees

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A. W. Ford, state education commissioner, urged Wednesday that school superintendents eliminate all fees for the next school year.

Emphasizing that the decision to eliminate fees is a local one, Ford pointed out that a recent survey showed that Arkansas parents pay in excess of $1.5 million a year in fees, and said there is no question that the fees tend to discriminate against children of poorer parents.

The Trumann schools have decided to abolish all fees beginning with the fall term, and Ford called this "an exceptionally fine program... and I believe it will work across the state."

Claims Nationalist Guerrillas Active

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — A Rhodesian African nationalist spokesman claims that nationalist guerrillas are still active in an area about 65 miles northwest of Salisbury. He says they killed five policemen Tuesday.

The spokesman for the Zimabwe African National Union said guerrillas near Sinoia attacked a police post guarding the main power line from the Karibe Dam to Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital.

The spokesman said it was this same group which engaged police in the district in a running battle last week. The Rhodesian government said seven Africans were killed.

Corporation Must Pass New Tax

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A 5-mill property tax doesn't go in to effect automatically with the incorporation of a city and election of its officials, the attorney general's office said Tuesday.

The tax would have to be imposed by the city council or the electors, the ruling said.

State Purchases More Property

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Revenue Building Commission added seven small pieces of property under the Capitol grounds expansion program, voting Tuesday to pay $119,250 for the acquisitions.

Will Try to Figure Viet Nam People

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Johnson and Henry Cabot Lodge meet here next week they will try mind-reading, not on each other but on the people of South Viet Nam.

Since neither Johnson nor Lodge, U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, knows for sure what to expect in that troubled land, the best they can do is guess, which would be bad enough if they only had to guess about the Communists.

But they have to do even more guessing about the people whom this country is supposed to be protecting from the ravages of Communism at a cost of billions of dollars and thousands of American lives.

Not all the people in South Viet Nam are anti-Communist. Some are pro-Communist. Some are indifferent. Some are pro-American, some anti-American, and some are against each other.

In that little Southeast Asian peninsula, cries of gratitude to the United States get lost some times in shouts of "down with Americans" as loyalties get tangled in politics, religion, and worry about living costs.

It must have come as cold comfort to Johnson — and to Lodge, as he made his way homeward to Washington this week — to read what U. Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations, said last Friday in France.

The situation in Viet Nam has gone from bad to worse and is becoming more complex and more difficult as the days go on, he said, urging negotiations.

Then, as if he also were as confused and uncertain as everyone else, Thant in France was saying Monday he sees little or no chance for a negotiated settlement.

Meanwhile, for a man as quick to talk as he is, Johnson in the White House maintained a strange and almost Buddhist-like silence on the subject of Viet Nam.

But the turmoil couldn't be brushed under the rug, as Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara made plain Monday when he said the U.S. military effort against the Viet Cong was really reduced because of the political unrest in South Viet Nam.

"We were afraid of civil war," he said, "we were afraid of the separation of the entire northern part of the country, and of the overthrow of the government."

There has been a three-week lull in the ground fighting as the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese regulars avoid combat.

The Buddhists have been the main cause of the rumpus in the South, wanting the military government out. But there is evidence of friction among the Buddhists. And there is friction between Catholics and Buddhists.

And last week, before Lodge began his trip to Washington, some Catholic demonstrators carried placards saying "Lodge, go back to America."

Auto Industry Promises to 'Do Better'

By CHARLES C. CAIN
AP Business News Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The U. S. auto industry promised to do better after disclosing Friday that shortcomings, ranging from major fire hazards to misplaced ash tray lights, had been found in thousands of cars since 1960.

General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors submitted detailed reports to a House committee indicating that one out of every five cars built in the past six years had been involved in a check of possible defects.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., head of a subcommittee probing auto safety, said he was "startled and surprised by the size of the percentages" but added that the American car still is "the safest on the road."

Ribicoff told a news conference he was confident labor and management could work out better quality control on assembly lines before cars get to dealers' hands.

Sen. Ribicoff had asked the four auto firms to supply his committee with a list of "product defects and deficiencies found in the 47 million cars built since 1960."

He said of the company reports: "In the last six years, 8,700-225 cars have been involved in so-called recall campaigns. Thus, in six years, 18.5 per cent of the cars have been defective in some respects. It should be clear that many of the defects were not safety related."

War Spills Into Laos, More Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The war in Viet Nam has been spilling over into Laos and Cambodia and the United States is encountering more difficulty in obscuring the fact.

Two unusual official disclosures in the last three days have thrown fresh light on the involvement in combat actions of territories in both Laos and Cambodia.

In Washington, the Defense Department reported for the first time on casualties in air operations over Laos. The reports showed that in the past two years 11 U.S. flyers have been killed there and somewhat fewer than 20 others have been listed as missing or captured by Communist forces.

And in Saigon, a U.S. spokesman confirmed accounts from news correspondents on the scene that last Saturday American artillery fired across a boundary river into Cambodian jungles to silence enemy guns when U.S. troops ran into heavy fire from Viet Cong forces on the Cambodian side.

Washington authorities asserted that in the prolonged operations over Laos and in the brief clash across the Cambodian border, the Communists were responsible for initial violations of territory outside Viet Nam and that the U.S. fire was defensive.

Officials in Washington denied that this week's unusual disclosures resulted from any policy decision to signal a new and broader phase of warfare in Southeast Asia. Basic U.S. policy, they said, is still to keep the conflict confined to Viet Nam but Communist actions sometimes force counteractions outside that country.

When such actions do occur the practice of the State and Defense departments has been to say nothing about them if possible and otherwise to make minimum disclosure. The justification offered for this practice is that sensitive relations with other governments are involved.

As the Viet Nam war grows in intensity, however, it is now recognized here that the policy of silence may very well be more difficult to maintain.

In the current case of the report of casualties suffered over Laos, officials said the Defense Department had received queries about a week ago concerning notification given to a family of a lost flyer. The family reportedly was informed that the loss had occurred over Laos.

British Doctors to Get Raises

LONDON (AP) — Raises ranging up to one-third of their incomes for doctors and dentists in Britain's national health service apparently have averted a strike. But they may endanger the Labor government's campaign to hold wage hikes for others to 3½ per cent.

The highest pay hikes went to general practitioners, whose average incomes will climb to $11,000. Hospital physicians and dentists got 13½ per cent, with most of the money going to young doctors who now make only $2,200 a year.

Thinks U.S. Could Stop the Fighting

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

(AP) — Tran Van Huu, a premier of South Viet Nam in the days of Emperor Bao Dai, suggests that the first move toward peace there must come from the United States.

Huu, 70, has lived in Paris the last 11 years. Winding up his month's visit to the United States, he told an interviewer this week:

"I am sure that if the Americans stopped the war the others would too. The call to a truce can come only from the mightiest, the smallest cannot call for a truce. But if the mightiest called for a truce, the others would follow."

"They would have to accept because if they were to carry on the war, they wouldn't have the approbation of the population. We have been running for peace for 25 years."

Huu said he spoke to Washington officials last week about a possible truce "but there hasn't been any echo."

"I have the impression that peace is not for tomorrow," he added, wryly. "When we will have burned Viet Nam to ashes, there will not be any conflict."

Huu said hostilities should be stopped to prepare a climate for negotiations and the United States should negotiate with the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front. "In a case as hard as this," he explained, "we must talk to the worst enemies."

But he said he found that while some in Washington wanted negotiations, they did not want to hear about North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh; and while they wanted peace in the South, they did not want to hear about the National Liberation Front.

He said he got the impression Washington did not favor having self-exiled Vietnamese like himself return to South Viet Nam's projected national election. He commented: "This is extremely serious, because the majority of the elite is outside."

He said the self-exiled Vietnamese had been refused South Vietnamese visas so many times they had quit asking for them.

Huu called the coming election "a kind of diversion" anyhow because in South Viet Nam "it is not possible for people today to express their will freely."

He remarked with a smile that he himself was responsible for Nguyen Cao Ky, South Viet Nam's present premier, because in 1951 he founded the military school that graduated Ky.

Huu was premier under Bao Dai from April 27, 1950, to June 3, 1952.

He contended in the interview that a coalition government should be formed in South Viet Nam including three groups that arose in 1955 in opposition to the authoritarian regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem — those that went abroad, those that became political prisoners, and those that went underground to form the Viet Cong.

Huu said the Viet Cong were not Communist in the beginning and were "not entirely" Communist now, though the U.S. bombing of the last year had "forced the Front to ally itself with the North."

Grant to State Hospital Given

The money is for improvements in comprehensive treatment of maximum security patients.

Cong Battalion Annihilated by Americans

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. Command claimed today the annihilation of a reinforced Communist battalion in two days of savage fighting in central Viet Nam.

A military spokesman said there was "precious little left" of more than 400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops encountered 10 miles north of Bong Son and 280 miles northwest of Saigon in Operation Davy Crockett. The fighting has taken place near the coast along the South China Sea.

The spokesman said troops of the helicopter-lifted 1st Cavalry, (Airmobile) Division killed 332 enemy soldiers Thursday and Friday.

A South Vietnamese spokesman reported that Vietnamese paratroopers and reconnaissance units who supported the American action killed 84 more. This raised the total enemy dead to 416.

The heavy ground fighting, the biggest action in three weeks, dominated a day in which there were also these developments:

1. Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky declared he would retain his post at the head of the South Vietnamese government for at least another year. He thereby possibly touched off new political unrest from power-seeking Buddhists because of his earlier promise to step down after the national elections scheduled by September.

2. The U.S. Air Force, in a delayed report, said its fighter-bombers had wrecked two spans of the vital Bac Giang railroad and highway bridge 25 miles northeast of Hanoi. The bridge is a key link in the rail and road system from the North Vietnamese capital to Communist China.

3. Air Force B52 bombers again bombed a suspected Viet Cong troop concentration near the Cambodian border, 75 miles northeast of Saigon. It was the seventh day in a row that the giant bombers returned to the Viet Cong stronghold, to support U.S. 1st Infantry Division troops.

In addition to more than 400 killed in Operation Davy Crockett, the military spokesman reported the capture of 40 Communists and 515 suspects.

He said that there had been no significant contact with the enemy since midnight, indicating that the remnants of the Communist force had fled.

The spokesman said 12 U.S. air sorties were flown in support of the action and credited pilots with killing 85 of the Viet Cong.

"If the enemy force was a battalion as estimated at first," he said, "there is precious little of it left. Even if there were two enemy units, they were badly mauled."

State Hospital Gets $449,800

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas State Hospital here has been given $449,800 by the National Institute of Mental Health to start a five-year project for comprehensive treatment of maximum security patients.

Dr. Oscar Kosberg, assistant superintendent, said most of the money will be used to employ additional staff members.
